Re: Senator, Lacondina RoseJanuary 6, 2023*Page 2

The client indicated that her daughter was insistent that she returns the individual's vehicle to the Spokane area from where they were stopped. The client noted that against her better judgment, and in an effort to protect her daughter, she made the decision to return the vehicle to the Spokane area, but in doing so, slid off the road due to the poor weather conditions.

Ms. Senator noted that she made the decision to remain with the vehicle after law enforcement was contacted, after which she was met by officers and cited for speed too fast for conditions and driving without a license. Ms. Senator provided images of both issued citations in support of her claim. Ms. Senator indicated that she was unaware if or when she would be formally charged by the Spokane County Prosecutor's Office, and indicated that she was advised formal charges could take up to 1 year.

U.S. Probation Officer Action:

In response to the client's admitted conduct as outlined, Ms. Senator was both reprimanded for her behavior and advised that the Court would be made aware of the transgression. Further, these parties spent a sufficient amount of time discussing the importance of setting healthy boundaries in regard to not only her sobriety, but her conduct while in the community, to include those boundaries often required with family.

Further, the undersigned officer worked with Ms. Senator in applying cognitive-based interventions to her scenario which she previously faced, after which she herself was able to identify both negative outcomes of her chosen behavior, as well as a new and healthier behavior she would commit to if she was again in similar circumstances. Ms. Senator committed to not only setting healthy boundaries for herself, but continuing to use cognitive interventions as a part of her decision making process moving forward.

To Ms. Senator's credit, she has previously and successfully completed inpatient and outpatient chemical dependency treatment, as well as outpatient mental health counseling. Ms. Senator is currently employed full time and residing in clean and sober housing where she serves as the house president. Further, Ms. Senator's conduct as outlined herein would constitute her first reported violation during the current term of supervised release.

It is hoped the intermediate sanction imposed meets the expectations of the Court. Please advise the undersigned officer if Your Honor requires a different course of action or a court appearance by the offender.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.
